

To whom it may concern:

I have been a flight attendant for more than 15 years with United Airlines and I am Based in Paris France.
This Idea of cell phone use on the airplane is in my opinion another toe tag mentality of government. I can see the benefits for all the business people being able to multitask them selves into a heart attack. But I have seen it all to often those business men are bringing their computers on board so they can watch a DVD of their own or play solitaire. Maybe 5% of them actually work. Now think of the cell phones this wont be work this will be a gabfest, annoying everyone around you when you need sleep or peace and quiet.
Not to mention the obvious terrorist implications here. I can see how it will work though it is just like alcohol and cigarettes, the Government is ok with the few who will smoke or drink themselves to death until it starts killing other people then you don't ban it you make laws restricting it, but you have to wait till someone dies because of it so it can take 20 years of debate in the legal system. to declare that we shouldn't have legalized it in the first place.
well I do not want to be the statistic on your government chart so that Billy bob in seat 15c can talk to his wife about the dogs flea problem.

There is no hard evidence that cell phone use doesn't interfere with navigational instruments.

- Cell phone use would enable terrorists to coordinate a plan of action more effectively.
- The NPRM would leave it up to flight attendants to police the use of cell phones onboard the aircraft compromising our ability to maintain a safe, secure cabin environment and to conduct emergency evacuations.
- It would make an already tense cabin environment even more stressful.

Eric Davis
14 route de Larny
02600 Haramont,
France
email ualsw@yahoo.com